

The Proud Count

The Proud Count was loud, stout, wore a shroud and lived in a round house with big grounds. He would shout out as he counted his pounds. The sound wound other people up! The count wound other people up so much that they surrounded him, pounced on him and trounced him.

